

WITH LA SALLE

Région lasallienne
Europe Méditerranée

We think of De La Salle as one of us—someone we greet with a “good morning,” someone who walks with us in our daily lives, someone we can embrace when we need to feel welcomed and safe.

Yes, he was a man of the 17th century, but he is also the one who showed us a way to be happy and to encounter God:

- the way of community,
- the way of encounter with the small and the poor,
- the way of education as a means of transforming the world,
- and the way of “we are not alone,” because Jesus is always alive beside us—

the God who is near, ready to accompany us, console us, inspire us, and lead us to embrace one another.

Today we celebrate De La Salle, who now lives in the arms of the Father-Mother of Heaven, because we, TOGETHER, are called to take part in God’s project — in the De La Salle way—for a world that is more just, more beautiful, more welcoming, more peaceful, and more fraternal for all.
