10:15 Working group: Session 3:
Sharing and conclusions

*At a time when nationalism, unchecked capitalism, isolationism, the continued treatment of migrants and refugees "as pawns on the chessboard of humanity", a persistent educational crisis where there is poor education for the poor, and the abuse of natural resources all seem to be more and more accepted as socio-political strategies, we must ask ourselves: how is our educational mission being called upon to disrupt these patterns?
(Lasallian Reflection No. 11, pg. 9)*
